Dear Friends and Supporters of CRJ:

Thank you for all that you do for CRJ. It is a privilege to serve our community and our nation alongside you. Please stay with us as we stand with our families and clients to reach higher, and go further.

President and Chief Executive Officer

Community Strategies

Safety with Developmental Disabilities: CRJ has continued to advance its national leadership in designing, developing, and implementing safety services with people who have Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (IDD). The Safe and Secure Strategy seeks to fill the gap between traditional protection models and the need for intensive safety with IDD individuals. CRJ delivered this work to over 100 adults with IDD across the country, and our clients experienced positive outcomes, including reduced hospitalizations, enhanced community engagement, and increased personal control and self-advocacy.

Social Justice Services

CRJ has maintained its national leadership in Community Integration for Justice Involved Individuals (CIJI). Our work aims to reduce recidivism through reentry programs designed to enable individuals to rejoin and succeed in their communities. CRJ continues to support individuals in reentry programs across the country, helping them transition to community-based living and integrate into society, thereby decreasing the likelihood of reoffending. CRJ’s efforts in reentry have been recognized through various awards and accolades, including the 2014 National Champion Award from the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) and the J. Bryan Riley Meritorious Service Award.

Crime and Justice Institute

CRJ’s Crime and Justice Institute (CJI) continues to make significant contributions to the field of community corrections, particularly through its research and policy analysis. CJI’s work is informed by the latest evidence and best practices, ensuring that its recommendations are grounded in science and informed by the experiences of those directly impacted by the criminal justice system. CJI’s efforts have been recognized through the J. Bryan Riley Meritorious Service Award, and its research has been instrumental in guiding policy and practice improvements. CJI’s focus on evidence-based practices and collaborative research with government agencies and non-profits has led to improved outcomes and increased public safety.

Alisha’s Story

Alisha is a young woman with significant special needs who has been a client of CRJ for several years. She has faced numerous challenges, including issues related to her health and independence. CRJ has provided Alisha with the support and resources she needs to thrive in her community. Alisha’s story is a testament to the impact that CRJ’s services can have on the lives of individuals and families. CRJ has been a crucial partner in ensuring that Alisha is able to participate in community activities and achieve her goals. Alisha’s story is not unique, and it is a reflection of the work that CRJ does every day to support individuals and families across the country.

MISSION, TREATMENT, PHILOSOPHY, VALUES

We Welcome Change

CRJ supports our most challenged clients. We work with individuals in or at risk of being in the adult or juvenile justice systems, people with disabilities, and vulnerable populations. We do so by bringing the expertise of CRJ's work to communities and people with disabilities who are in the field of community corrections.

We Focus on Behavior

We use our research and policy analysis to build the capacity of people and organizations to provide the best care possible, and we work to design and implement interventions that bring about positive change.

Creativity & Excellence

We are committed to excellence in our work, and we strive to be creative in our approach to addressing the challenges faced by individuals and families we serve.

Integrity

We are committed to integrity in all aspects of our work, and we are dedicated to ensuring that our clients and stakeholders receive the highest level of care and support.

Compassion

We are committed to compassion in all aspects of our work, and we strive to create a culture of kindness and empathy.

President and Chief Executive Officer

Thank you. We stand with you. We are able to do that because of your support. I am deeply grateful to you and others who have stood with us in the past and who will join us in the future. We also know that we will not be able to do our work without the support of the many individuals, families, and organizations who have been deeply impacted by our work. We thank you for your support.

Chair, Board of Directors

And on the evening of April 4, 2013, Ed Montella, CRJ’s President and CEO from 1986-2002, returned to CRJ to speak at our Spring Reception. Ed was acknowledging the high impact of our work and the commitment of our staff and volunteers.

CRJ’s Community Strategies

We’ve accomplished a lot over the past year: a significant expansion of our impact through the Overcoming the Odds program, new community-based programs, smart and effective ways of integrating our resources to maximize public safety benefits for all of us, and the highest possible standards of care and accountability as we continue to work as a team.

2014 Annual Report

We launched our Overcoming the Odds program to assist the Boston Police department in reducing recidivism. The program provides stability and support to vulnerable populations through coordinated services. Through a network of five halfway houses, we assist in the successful re-entry of individuals released from prison, parole, or probation.

Social Justice Services

With the development of our national-scale consulting practice, we have successful translated innovative models for responding to community needs into effective and efficient programs for families and individuals in need. Our programs are designed to provide immediate relief and ongoing support, with the goal of preventing re-offending.

Dear Friends and Supporters of CRJ:

This annual report will highlight only a few of the accomplishments that have been possible with our service delivery. We know “what works” and are experts at using research and evidence-based practice to inform and continue to prioritize us among the charities that work to earn your support.

This year, halfway house managers launched an initiative to introduce the latest “evidence-based practices” to provide a deeper understanding of “what works,” and implementation tools and training protocols to use in our programs. The result has been a very good one for CRJ. For example:

• Our own CJI experts have been deployed internally to help the agencies responsible for auditing and evaluating our charitable business with significant reach across the country.

In each of the jurisdictions in which we work, state and federal public policy reforms are in full swing, generating a wide range of new opportunities. In some cases, organizations are pursuing significant criminal justice reforms in statutes, regulations, and practice. In others, evidence-based practices and policies were vital in positioning us to be successful. The experience that they have in helping other departments in similar initiatives, was invaluable in guiding an organization like ours through this difficult change.

In all cases, communities are safer and society is more just because we help vulnerable populations.

I’m proud to say that this past fiscal year has been a very good one for CRJ. For example:

Community Strategies

The theme of our 2014 Annual Report is “Safe, Secure, and More Livable Communities.” This year has been filled with positive events and new initiatives that promise to enrich and rewarding lives through our more than 30 residential and day programs which offer community engagement, meaningful employment, and personal development.

We launched our Overcoming the Odds program to assist the Boston Police department in smart and effective ways of integrating their resources to maximize public safety benefits for vulnerable populations.

The prestigious International Community Corrections Association (ICCA) has awarded Liz Curtin the J. Bryan Riley Meritorious Service Award. Given to an individual whose work exemplifies the ideals of ICCA and has delivered outstanding service and impact, Liz was recognized as a leader to the field of community corrections.

Crime and Justice Institute

Our national-level consulting practice works with state officials, associations, private foundations, and other partners to address the needs of criminal justice systems across the nation. CRJ’s Crime and Justice Institute (CJI) uses its research, technical assistance, and consulting experience to assist with the design and implementation of criminal justice reform, re-offending. This leads to better outcomes and safer communities.

In my many years of association with CRJ, I can’t recall a time when we were helping more people, or making a bigger challenge of making communities safer, while improving the lives of athletes in the final steps of the Flame of Hope Journey.

Patrick, from our Keene NH program, was honored to carry the Flame of Hope last year at the Special Olympics. He’s an advocate and a great role model for both CRJ and the Special Olympics.

"I am in a new house, and I am so happy we are sharing. They have been so supportive of me all along the way. They have helped me talk things out, and they are there for me all the time. They have helped me learn to be an effective manager, and they have helped me become a better person." – Lori from Winchendon Program

"CRJ helped me realize ‘I won’t alone.” – Linda, former resident of CRJ’s Westminster Program

"I owe my success came from advocating and working hard.” – Joshua Tackett, Program Manager, Westminster Program

"Over the past year, our clients have demonstrated the value of a healthful lifestyle with the help of CRJ’s substance abuse counseling and nutrition services." – Debbie Flanders, Program Director, New England Aquarium

"Have you guys tried anything tasty?" – John Bowman, General Manager, Bertuccis

Annual Spring Reception

Former Boston Police Commissioner Ed Davis is honored at CRJ’s Annual Spring Reception. The fundraiser supported CRJ’s new Edward P. Davis Fund for Re-entry Support, named in honor of Commissioner Davis, who is the very first alumnus of CRJ’s Westminster Program. A former Springfield police officer and former state trooper, he was also a former resident of a halfway house resident with his former room mate, Stefanie. Now the general manager of an area non profit, Reggie was reunited with Stefanie for the first time since he left Coolidge House five years ago.

Boston’s Seaport Hotel provided an outstanding venue last May for CRJ’s Community Reception. The capacity crowd, made up of individuals who support CRJ’s work for the developmentally disabled, were treated to a delicious dinner and a moving presentation on the life of the Institute’s founder, Arthur T. Lyman. The highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Arthur T. Lyman Medal of Honor to former Governor of Massachusetts, William F. Weld, for his tireless efforts in improving the lives of those with developmental disabilities. Governor Weld has been a staunch supporter of CRJ’s mission since its early years, and his commitment to improving the lives of individuals with disabilities is an inspiration to all who know him.”

Community Strategies

• Ed is addressing the issue of public policy reforms. In all cases, communities are safer and society is more just because we help those that are interested in helping themselves.

• Our national-scale consulting practice works with elected officials, policy makers, corrections professionals and thought leaders to effect change.

• One of our direct service programs is Sargent House, which works with youth. In recent years, we've helped 3,000 youth re-offending. This leads to better outcomes and safer communities.

• Through our consulting practice, we help our clients throughout the nation improve employment, and personal development.
